

Our Lady of the Angels School elects two to Hall of Fame as part of Catholic Schools Week

COLUMBIA, PA - January 28, 2012 marked the opening celebration of Catholic Schools Week at Our Lady of the Angels with students attending their respective parishes 5 o'clock mass. Immediately following the mass, the annual Hall of Fame reception was held at Holy Trinity Social Hall.

The school's Development

Committee sponsors this reception to induct two honorees, one that has graduated from Holy Trinity and one from St. Peter School. This honor is bestowed to those individuals possessing the values of the Catholic faith and its reflection in

Hall of Fame Inductees

Sister Anna Cosgrave and Mrs. Theresa Burg are the 2012 inductees into the Our Lady of the Angels Hall of Fame.

their accomplishments and dedication to Catholic Education.

Our inductees are being recognized for following in that tradition of Stewardship. They answered the same call from the Lord that Samuel did: "Yes, Lord, your servant is listening." Our honorees for 2012 truly have a "servant's heart." Both women have answered the call of the Lord in different ways – the sacrament of marriage, religious vocation; serving the local church family, leaving homeland behind to serve abroad. The differences pale in comparison to the shared mission: to love and serve our parishes and the children of our school.

Congratulations to Mrs. Theresa Burg and Sister Anna Cosgrave on their induction into Our Lady of the Angels Hall of Fame as they join past recipients, Philip Glatfelter, Betty Jo Stephenson, Mary Loreto, Carole Bitts, Peg Dailey, Claire Storm, John Lutz, Francine Redman, Anita Grab, Mary Phyllis Hartman, Mary Lou Melbert, Adam Campbell, Fr.
