

Mitt Romney has history of success

When I go for surgery, it doesn't matter if the surgeon is a nice guy to have a drink with. But his track record and skills to successfully complete the job surely do.

When I vote for a president, I want one who has performed well in his past career and who is sincere in devoting his talents and time towards his job as leader of the free world.

Mitt Romney has done well in whatever job he pursued.

Obama, meanwhile, has our country on a rapid decline.

Obama has proven he doesn't have the best interests of America at heart. This was made clear when he went campaigning instead of sending aid to the four Americans killed in Libya by terrorists. If he didn't know what was going on, he should have.
