NEW WORLDS AWAIT

Shaping the future of the Columbia Public Library

New worlds await you at the Columbia Public Library. From our beginnings in the bank building on North Second Street in 1929 to today, we have been an integral, essential component of our community and its surrounding area.

More than 40,000 visitors per year pass through our doors in our current building on South Sixth Street. But it is time for the building, constructed in 1960, to evolve and expand to meet the needs of the twenty-first century patron. To help bring this plan to fruition, we are embarking on a Capital Campaign to raise the funds necessary for the expansion. Today's library members have varied needs—ranging from technology to job search assistance to the printed word—and our community library strives to meet the needs of ALL who enter.

LOOKING AHEAD

Libraries of today are multidimensional, incorporating flexible spaces for community gatherings, meeting rooms with integrated technology, high-speed Internet access for patrons who prefer the use of e-readers, and traditional book access for those who prefer a hands-on experience or need access to special collections available only in hard copy. Plans for the library will address these needs while also incorporating open floor plan features to enhance visibility throughout the library, access to natural light, views to Locust Street Park, and enhanced support facilities for staff.

A SPECIAL APPEAL

By supporting the Columbia Public Library through this Capital Campaign, you can have a direct, positive impact on the people of Columbia and beyond. Our new expansion will cost $2.5 million, and while $1.1 million has already been secured, the remainder must come from the philanthropy of donors such as yourself. We invite you to play a vital role in our community's future.
